Notes from the Festival organiser

The beer! We have again increased the order for beer and cider and are now cramming into the hall about as much as it will hold. We have ordered some 180 different cask beers, selected from, as the band leader Semprini used to say, ‘old ones, new ones, loved ones, neglected ones’.

We cannot put all of the beer that we have on to the stillage from the start. You will see that many casks are on the floor below it: these are marked by * in the list above. They can only be racked when a space occurs, so that a beer that you particularly want may not be available immediately. This is the only way that we can operate, so please understand our situation. We would advise against making long journeys just to sample one or two specific beers. To reiterate, we simply cannot guarantee that they will be on whilst you are at the festival.

We do not hold back beer; once it is ready to go on sale – and it has to be ready because we will not compromise on quality – it goes on sale until it is sold. Similarly, we cannot guarantee that all the beers that we have listed here will arrive but there will be substitutes of equal quality.

Beer prices: despite what some say, with one generous exception, none of the beer is gifted to us. It is all purchased from the breweries or beer agencies on normal commercial terms. Battersea Beer Festival follows CAMRA guidelines in charging what is reasonable for the area without seriously undercutting local pubs or excessive overcharging. Please remember that the very strong beers will now be more expensive because of the Government’s recent increase in duty on beers over 7.5% ABV.

Selection policy and LocAle: CAMRA’s LocAle campaign is very important to us but both the Pig’s Ear Festival last December and the London Drinker Festival (7 to 9 March) heavily feature London beers and so we have spread our net more widely to bring you what we hope is the best in British real ale, mostly from small or medium sized breweries. We are not a ‘winter ales’ or ‘dark beers’ festival; we aim for a range that will cover all tastes.

Our particular speciality is the standard ‘session’ bitter, but this year we have added a small ‘Strong Beers’ bar next to the Foreign Beer bar. I’m sure that you will find something there to send you happily on your way.

Measures: in line with CAMRA policy, our beers are served in oversized, lined glasses – both pint and half pint glasses are available. This year the committee has decided not to have 1/3rd pint glasses or lines because we feel that demand for them has not been sufficient to justify the additional complications involved. Neither will we be using the new 2/3rd pint ‘schooner’ measure.

Beer and cider/perry of the Festival: with your glass you will find a voting form for ‘Beer of the Festival’. Please let us know not just your favourite real ale but cider, perry and foreign beer as well. Breweries really value these awards. Please put your form in the box on the Glasses Stand when you leave the Festival.

Foreign beers: as ever, we have a good range of imported beers selected by Bar Manager Peter J Sutcliffe from his wide personal knowledge. This bar is located in the main hall.

Country wines: a range of traditional English country wines can also be found in the Lower Hall.
